

Justus Swensen is a graduate of Utah State University with a bachelor's degree through the Biology Department in public health with an industrial hygiene emphasis. Justus has experience dealing with the anticipation, recognition, evaluation and control of occupational health and safety hazards in the workplace. He has managed safety systems in the generation and distribution of electricity. He has practice in developing, implementing and monitoring safety and health programs in established workplaces along with inexperienced employers new to the safety arena.